Control An SV112 and Flexitone IIIXL from a Single FBV Shortboard (IT LIVES!!!)

I have one of these,

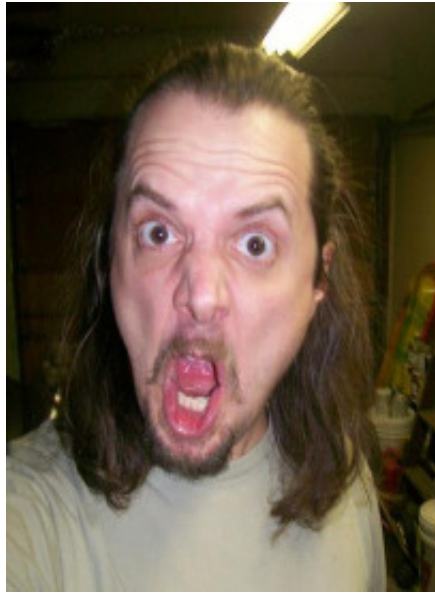

one of these

and one of these

Holy Crap! I can't control patch changes! That is most per DING! [AhHa Moment] I have an idea...

So I went to Fry's...I wonder what is in the bag....

Community: Control An SV112 and Fle...

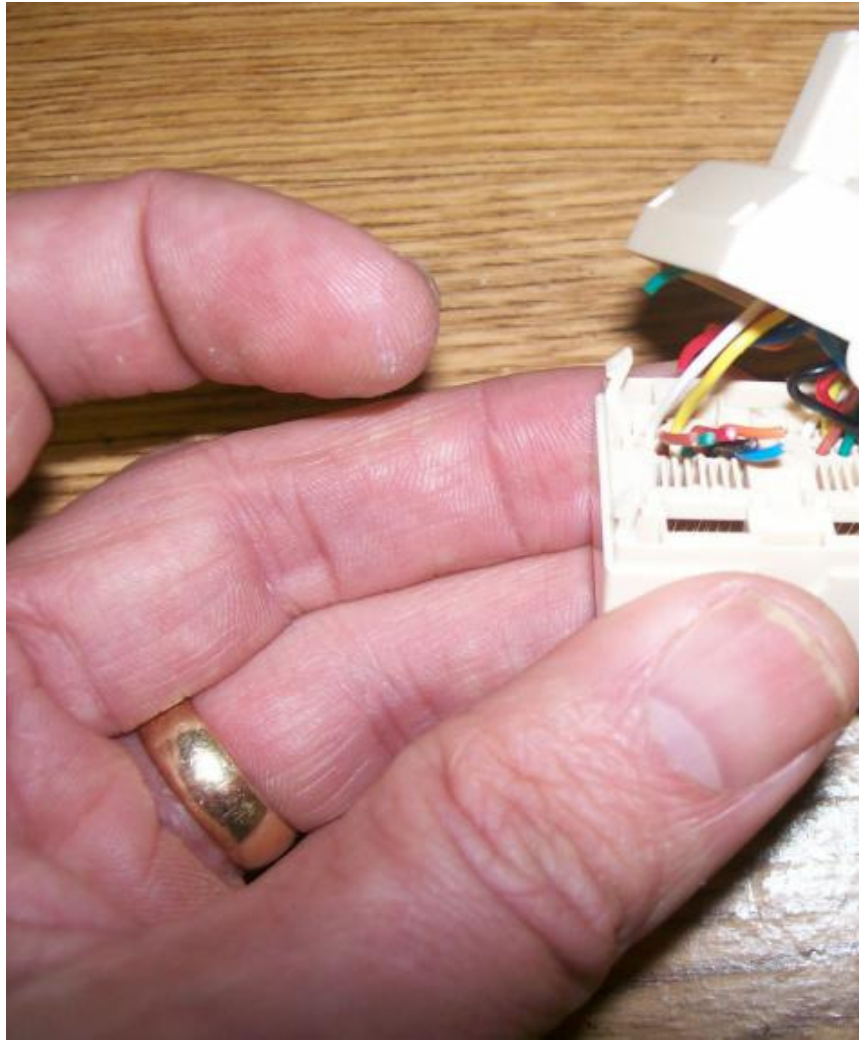

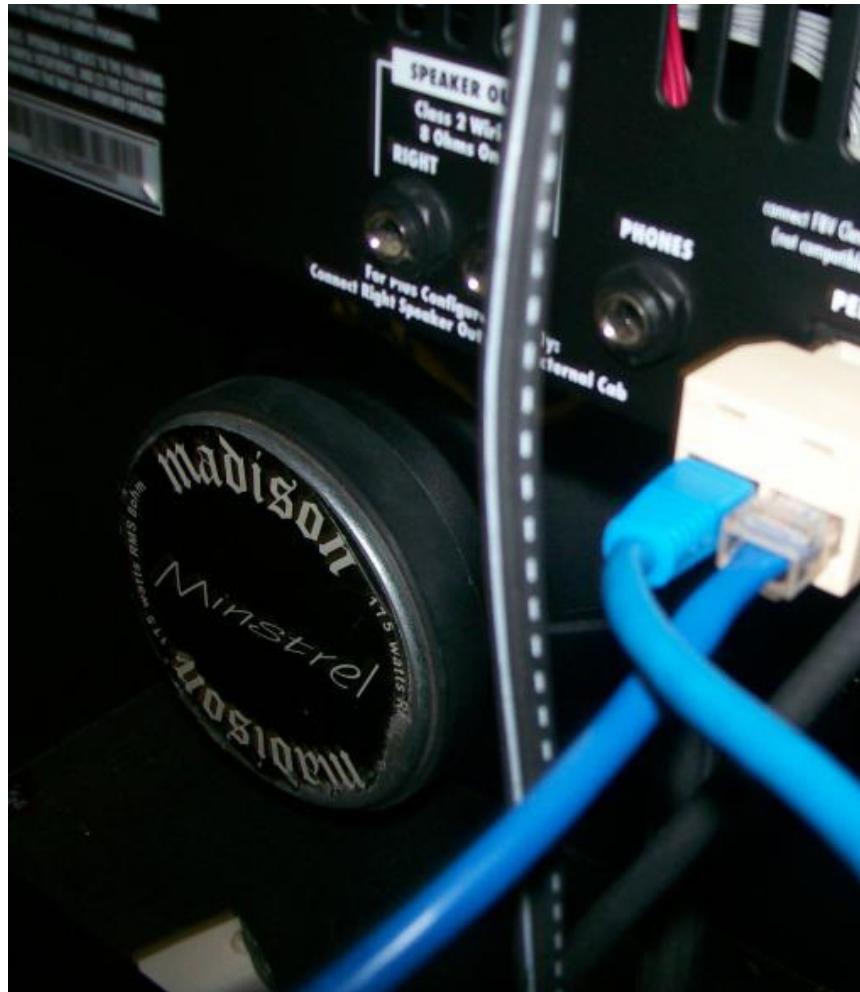

Why it is an RJ45 8Y connector, of course>>>

hmmmm...Let's see...How can I get this thing open....[smas

THIS HAS BEEN EDITED...The picture is NOT correct
8 also (white wire in the pic)
Now that it is open we need to clip wires attached to pin.
only 6 stays attached on one of the Y female RJ45s...hmr install the modified 8V RJ45...booted blue runs to the F1 running from the modified side to the Spider Valve 112...

So I call up 2a on my Shortboard...

Wow! That works...how about 2c?

The pictures above demonstrate using the two amps with acutally line up any bank to any bank which is you progr mapping like A is always a clean tone, it opens up some pe banks just navigate the SV to the bank the Flexitone is or XT and there is no reason this should not work with an X

...Ok, looks like I will be moving some patches around aft

Quite possibly the best thread from any forum, ever. Seriously hilarious and informative all at the same time!

Cheers,

lol, I'd had the same idea... I've saved a few good threads..

here's this thread from the old forum, with pictures and the full text from the old forum: <http://www.rowbinet.co.uk/documents/space.zip>

A great thread and an interesting idea. It is a shame that as of right now so many of these good ideas are now gone. Thanks for saving.

Re: Control An SV112 and Flextone IIXL from a Single FBV Shortboard (IT LIVES!!!)

well they're not all gone. the old forum it up for around a month:

<http://line6.com/supportold/index.jspa>

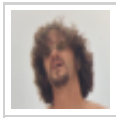

so I'm going through all the links on my website to cool threads like this one Space did, and I'm creating PDF's of the pages, but as the old forum's web address has changed, it wont display photos that were posted anymore, so the zip file I've posted is a PDF of all the text from spaces old thread, and all the photos seperately.

Community: Control An SV112 and Fle...

i've also started my own thread asking for people to suggest good threads from the old forum that I will PDF and host on my website.
